Declaration of the authors

By submitting an article to Sēnmurw, the authors declare that permission is given to the Istituto per l'Oriente Carlo Alfonso Nallino (via Alberto Caroncini 19, 00197 Rome, Italy: <https://ipocan.it>) to publish and distribute the above-mentioned contribution in the current number of the journal Sēnmurw, in both print and electronic formats. The authors also consent to the contribution being posted on electronic platforms for on-line consultation.

The authors also acknowledge and accept the following statements:

- The contribution has not been previously published.
- The contribution has not been submitted concurrently to another journal.
- The text follows the formal and material requirements outlined in the Instructions for Authors guidelines.
- The publication's ethics have been accepted and respected in the making of the article.
- The authors are not violating third party rights regarding the provenance of images, pictures, figures, tables, maps and drawings included in the article, for which they have obtained all the necessary permissions.

Rights to edit

The authors grant the Editorial Board of Sēnmurw the right to edit the material presentation and appearance of the article in order to comply with the journal's layout standards. The authors accept that their contribution will be subject to a double-blind peer review procedure, which may result in the request of applying corrections to the text. The authors are assured, nonetheless, that this process is completely anonymized.

Rights to use

The authors grant the publisher the exclusive right to use their above-mentioned contribution in printed and electronic forms, without limitations of place, time, and purpose, and including derivative works: the authors also consent to eventual further transfer of this right to third parties (e.g. for translations). Upon the expiration of a one-year period (so-called 'embargo'), the authors are granted the right to self-archiving their article in electronic or on-line publicly available
